

Women Build 2022

Using Instagram Stories:

Instructions: Social media is an effective tool to recruit new team members and inspire donors to support your Women Build goals. Below are text options to use along with a photo, to inform your followers about the Women Build mission and why it is important. Don't be afraid to post often and across multiple platforms, to reach as many potential team members and donors as you can. You can find more tips on social media fundraising at the end of the document.

Instagram Stories: This popular feature on Instagram allows you to share temporary content (24 hours) with your followers. It's often more interactive than a typical post and provides another place for your followers to see your content. New to Instagram Stories? Read this how-to guide for more information.

1. Post one of the images from the "Instagram Stories" folder and add text, stickers, and photos to make it super engaging. For example:
 - a. Story 1: Add text to share why you Women Build
 - b. Story 2: Add text to answer the prompts. Tag a teammate to share or tag friends to help reach your goal
 - c. Story 3: Take before and after pictures on your build day and upload them to your story to share all your hard work with your followers
2. Share an IG post onto your story to increase exposure.
3. Post throughout your build day, so your followers can see your awesome work on the build site.

Make Sure To:

1. Place the link to either your fundraising page or the general Women Build website page in your bio so your followers have a clickable link that will lead them directly to your desired page. Here is an article to show you how to add links to your IG bio.

2. Supplement these stories with personal anecdotes and reasons why you support Women Build's mission. Donors and potential team members are more inclined to support you and your connection to the event.
3. Tag @habitchicago and use the hashtag #CHIWomenBuild
